Did you know...The post office offers a new service called Informed Delivery where you can go on-line and see what mail you will be receiving soon. You do have to sign up for this service by going on line to USPS informed delivery. This is a very useful tool when the weather is bad to know if you need to get your mail or if it can wait. Thanks to Dianne Schmidt for telling us about this service.

Speaking of mail.... Numerous folks have requested that people not sit in their cars at the mailboxes & read their mail. It creates a lot of congestion & more obstacles(cars) to have to walk around especially when the weather is bad & with the snow piled so high it's even harder to maneuver around everything.
